In 1983, the shares in Lundbergs, with Lars Erik Lundberg's son Fredrik Lundberg as President and CEO, were listed on the Stockholm Stock Exchange. From its original status as a wholly owned family company, the step was now fully taken into the glare of the public eye. However, the Lundberg family retained a clear majority holding in the Company. Accordingly, during its first 60 years, Lundbergs has developed from a construction company to an investment company with interests in several different areas.
