

Effect of Merger or Acquisition Involving a Program Bank

If the amounts held for your benefit in a particular Program Bank's Deposit Account or other deposits at such Program Bank are assumed by another depository institution that acquires the Program Bank through a merger or consolidation, those deposits will continue to be insured separately from any deposits that you might already have with the acquiring institution until: (1) the maturity date for time deposits such as CDs or (2) six months after the date of the acquisition for other deposits. After that, the assumed deposits will be aggregated with existing balances you hold at the acquiring institution in the same capacity. Any Deposit Account set up at the acquiring institution after the acquisition will be aggregated from the date it is opened.
