That sounds encouraging.

Stew – can we get a meeting just to talk about the space and see where it goes?

He would also get the fact that some smart money (several HF's, and a secasus F0) use these strategies as a ATM machine/liquidity vehicle to allow them to stay invested in uncorrelated manner but also stay liquid. Possibly for some of the accounts he advises.

I agree JE himself would be a tough one to re-onboard for the known reasons.

He's somewhat of a control enthusiast. And already has a favorable tax set up.

Fellas! Which part did they object to? The low fees? The liquidity? The asymmetrically attractive risk / return profile of the trade? The ability to cap the downside? The favorable tax treatment?

Yes, GA is on the calendar. Todd and I met Southern and it's not a fit for him at this point. I still owe you Tisch

Hey Stew. I'm making the rounds with Andrew G to follow up with bankers to arrange meeting with clients targeted that you and I already discussed. Obviously I told him you and I didn't need this.

I think we have something already set with general Atlantic. Right?

The other 2 on the list that I think are outstanding are Southern Financial and Tisch.

Any update there?

Thanks amigo.
