I guess it makes sense for you to back Mapp ?

08:04:20 pm

[REDACTED]

That would be suicide for my long term viability in the VI and in other politics. I have real concerns for Alberts win but loyalty goes a long way for respect on the ground in the VI

08:11:30 pm

1212 5333739 understood. I just thought next round you'd rather run against a non incumbent

08:12:12 pm

[REDACTED]

Supporting Albert doesn't make him win

08:12:25 pm

No one in his camp has asked me my thoughts. He's run for 3 years and had 40% against a split vote with STT candidates who ran for a third of his time about 25% of registered Dems voted (9,000) and a significant group (1,300) didn't vote in the gubernatorial section. Fonsie doesn't lose his base and Mapp people will vote. Albert should not celebrate.

08:16:03 pm

Right now I'm focused on running for the DPCC co-chair position after Nov election its 3 people now and was Steve Israel's position. I can win that with the current members running for other spots (Hakeem Jeffries is one of the co-chairs) so I'm focused on raising money and campaign for likely red to blue candidates.

How can I help

08:24:34 pm

[REDACTED]

Tell me when you're in NYC and I'd love to come and talk with you about it. I'm in DC/NY month of Aug and beginning Sept. I'll focus on VI planning after Nov outcome. But I'm trying to do a decision tree based on VI election, congressional election, and what 2020 looks like
