The martin act???

Elliott Spitzer is said to have revived the law during his tenure as Attorney General.[6] In 2001, his office launched a Martin Act investigation against Merrill Lynch for suspected fraud.[6] When the investigation was made public, Merrill's market value dropped $5 billion in one week.[6] Ultimately, Merrill settled, agreeing to pay a $100 million fine and change the way its analysts are paid to head off possible criminal charges that it misled investors with tainted stock research.

01:37:40 pm

Criminally, the attorney general may assume a prosecutorial rule to punish both misdemeanors and felonies. Misdemeanors are punishable by a fine of up to $500 or imprisonment of up to one year, or both.[2] Felonies carry a penalty of up to four years of imprisonment.[2]
