Are you steadfast on your appeal?

03:35:50 pm

Unknown

Do I have an alternative?

03:36:31 pm

Ken Mapp

KM

I believe you do. You could wait for a ruling on the appeal so as to determine the time issues in the NOV. Alternatively, let Erica resolve the current issues with DPNR and let John put all of the projects you wish to accomplish on the table. DPNR will work with him to have them all permitted so you may implement them. I'm informed that the vast majority of your plans are permissible and they would work with you to accomplish this.

Not sure how ? But I will suggest to Erika to reach out.

She said czm has delayed sending the file to appeals so nothing can happen

01:11:25 pm

Ken Mapp

KM

It's not a delay. BLUA determines when they will hold hearing and collects the files at that time. John is a member. It's a timely process (unnecessarily so). Any opportunity for you to work out the differences with DPNR so the projects may be permitted?

Unknown

Yes I asked . Czm only sent the files today ! I'm staying quiet, but not a business friendly environment

Erika called and was told immediately. No resolution just pay 210k . - at your suggestion I have filed the aggressive lawsuit as to not burn the house. Thoughts? Congrats on step one sin tax

Sorry should have read -I have NOT filed as per your suggestion. Michelle baker said commissioner only willing to accept 210k . Silly and backs me into a corner

No, if the penalty issue can be resolved, they are prepared to work on all of the project issues. They are holding the position that the settlement agreement was breached, which would require a BLUA or settlement resolution.

I'll ask u to consider whether u want to make the point through a lawsuit and the attendant cost or have the matters resolved, permit your projects and then implement them.
