

£1,750,000

Last sold: 2021

COST PER SQUARE FOOT: £1,214

Terraced house Leasehold

44 Kinnerton Street, London, City Of Westminster, Greater London, SW1X 8ES

How much has this property changed in price since it was last sold?

44 Kinnerton Street, London is a leasehold terraced house - it is ranked as the 8th most expensive property in SW1X 8ES, with a valuation of £2,081,000.

Since it last sold in April 2021 for £1,750,000, its value has increased by £331,000.

Sale history

44 Kinnerton Street, London has 2 transactions recorded with HM Land Registry - its market value today is £2,081,000.

The current owner bought the property in April 2021 for £1,750,000 and has lived here for less than one year.

Date	Price	Change
Today's value	£2,081,000	£331,000 18.9%
19 Apr 2021	£1,750,000	£1,460,000 503.4%
22 Jan 1997	£290,000	-

Since the current owner purchased the property, its value has increased by £331,000 (18.9%).

This valuation doesn't take account of any home improvements - see below for a fully refurbished valuation.

EPSTEIN'S DRINKERS & DRIVERS

November 24, 2019

SECTION:

'The Steeple Times' reveals further information about Ghislaine Maxwell's activities in London just as Princess Beatrice is spotted round the corner from the alleged madam's pad

Early yesterday evening, Princess Beatrice was spotted shopping round the corner from the late Jeffrey Epstein's fixer Ghislaine Maxwell's Kinnerton Street home in Waitrose in Motcomb Street, Belgravia.

THE STEEPLE TIMES

Wit and Wisdom in Equal Measure

Support Fearless

Support The Steeple

Advertise

Sporting a turquoise overcoat, Prince ‘I Don’t Sweat A Lot’ Andrew’s daughter was accompanied by her fiancé, Edoardo Mapelli Mozzi, and seemed somewhat confused at how to operate the self-checkout. Rumours that the 31-year old has been “in tears ever since” supposedly being a key force in setting up her father’s juggernaut wreck of an interview were not dispelled by her somewhat disheveled makeup free look.

Of her, one customer remarked: “I don’t know why she’s here. She’d be better at a used car lot. At least there she could trade her disgusting father in.” Another present then added: “Have this family no shame? At this time, she’d be better to stay in and under the radar. The silly girl should have just called Ocado.”

Meanwhile today also, just as the Pizza Express loving ‘Duke of PR Disasters’ – a man who has now created a new verb in being “de-royaled” according to the royal historian Robert Lacey – has been forced to take down both his Royal Standard and flagpole even, Ghislaine Maxwell’s murky activities have yet again surfaced.

With the mainstream media going into uproar over Miss Maxwell having visited ‘Randy Andy’ at Buckingham Palace on or about 5th June – weeks after the Epstein probe was reopened – when she was in London to partake in the Cash & Rocket London-Monaco car rally alongside Pink Floyd drummer Nick Mason's wife, Annette (AKA 'Nettie'), we can today share a picture of the Alfa Romeo sports car the duo drove.

Ghislaine Maxwell's mews house – 44 Kinnerton Street, Belgravia, London, SW1X 8ES – is situated directly opposite the Kevin Moran independent public house, The Nag's Head. The house was previously home to a harness maker named William Ferguson in 1891 and subsequently rented by an American foreign service officer named Lewis Clark in 1947.

Today, for the first time, the 'Mail on Sunday' has published the full photograph of Prince Andrew with [REDACTED] at 44 Kinnerton Street. It clearly shows the white bannister that also features in Shaun Attwood's recent 'HUpulse' video.

1

Shaun Attwood pictured interviewing the “cleaner” at 44 Kinnerton Street. Note the white bannister.

THE STEEPLE TIMES

Wit and Wisdom in Equal Measure

Your Advert S
100,000 p
Advertise Here t

Whilst all reference to 'Car 28' and 'Goodtime Ghislaine' has been taken off the site, we can also reveal that a website named HUpulse has managed to obtain proof that 'Bouncing Bob's' daughter most definitely still owns the very house, 44 Kinnerton Street, where "breathtakingly arrogant, self-serving and boorish" Prince Andrew allegedly romped with [REDACTED] on 10th March 2001.

In the 1:31 minute footage HUpulse shared on YouTube, a "true crime YouTuber" named Shaun Attwood speaks to a woman – who looks rather too well dressed to be, as she claims, "the cleaner" – and gets her to confirm she doesn't know where Ghislaine Maxwell is. He effectively illustrates the blonde at the door knows full well who she is and has her confirm it is indeed the alleged madam's house still also. Attwood then manages to get his camera inside and in sight is the very white bannister than Prince Andrew appeared next to on the night in question.

Miss Maxwell paid £290,000 or the equivalent of £518,000 today for 44 Kinnerton Street, SW1X 8ES on 22nd January 1997. That the mews house – which is situated directly opposite The Nag's Head pub – hasn't been redecorated in the time since would certainly indicate that it has not, as some neighbours have strangely claimed, been sold on. Again we're all left asking: "Where's Ghislaine?" Who knows, she and Princess Beatrice might be spotted together at the checkout at 'Celebrity Waitrose' one day soon.

Facebook: @TheSteepleTimes
Instagram: @TheSteepleTimes
Twitter: @SteepleTimes

Share

-

Facebook

-

Twitter

-

Pinterest

-

WhatsApp

The Steeple Times

We research and background check our articles. If you believe we have made an error in some detail please get in touch, we seek always to write the truth and stand against a press owned by a self selected few. Please help us, we will accept all your likes, subscriptions and anonymous support. The Editor and his team at the Steeple Times.

Advertisement

9 COMMENTS

1. Dale Masters

Ghislaine should and likely will get jailed.

Reply

2. Pamela Jackson

I'm now put off going to that pub. She likely took Prince Andrew in there. Yuck!

Reply

3. Ethel

They say where there's wealth, there's muck and these people seem to all possess the most mucky features.

Reply

4. Rod

Don't send Ghislaine Down Under!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! She's no looker!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! Filthy slapper!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Reply

5. Justin Downes

Robert Maxwell used to be close to the Royal Family. I remember driving back from Heathrow with Maxwell. I was in the back: he was in the front next to Hoppy, his Terry Thomas lookalike driver. As Maxwell went through his letters he proudly passed one back on Buck House paper addressed 'Dear Bob' in ink and signed 'Phillip'.
Even then he was known as dangerous.....

Reply

6. Barnual

What a grubby bit of journalism.
If you feel that the opinion of some nonentity on Beatrice is news is pure lousy journalism.
I am seriously confused why someone who is not guilty or accused of a crime should not shop where she likes and dressed as she likes.

This total crap is why the gutter press exists.

Reply

o Matthew Steeples

You plainly have no feeling on the British nation's view on this family. 50% now want Randy Andy banned from all royal events. The daughters profit from their parents and take from the public purse, so yes, they are of interest.

Reply

o Dodge

Obviously a blind royalist, who think they can do no wrong. Sorry if you're confused, and yes you're right, she can shop where she likes. But like Matthew explained, she is the daughter of a rather well known person who does take from the hard working tax paying public. So she a person of interest. They can't only be in the public eye when it suits them.

Reply

LEAVE A REPLY