In the unlikely event that you have not seen the press: DOJ OPR's report in the Epstein matter has been issued. OPR is not releasing the report, but has released the executive summary, which is on the Department's Public Affairs website and OPR's website. The full report, however, was yesterday transmitted to Congress, which made it available to the press, which in turn made it public (via links on, among other websites, the Washington Post and the New York Times).

You are not named in the report, but occasionally referred to as the case agents' West Palm Beach supervisor.

On behalf of OPR, I want to thank you once again for having cooperated with OPR's investigation.

Warmest regards,

[REDACTED]
