Dear [REDACTED],

I am a longtime staff writer at The New Yorker, and I have become interested in [REDACTED], and what she and other minors experienced, because of Jeffrey Epstein. I plan to write a long piece about her, and I am contacting you at her suggestion. I would appreciate it very much if we could arrange a time to chat--it would be fine for you to be off the record, if you prefer. I live in Los Angeles, but I will also be in New York in the next month or so, and perhaps Florida, too. I'd prefer to meet, but we could of course speak on the phone. I hope we can work this out.

All best,
Connie
