Gents,

The New Yorker is publishing an article about the ongoing Epstein litigation.

We declined to comment as a result.

Below is what they plan to say about the FBI in the article.

Any issues or concerns, please let me know.

Regards,

Dear Jim, thank you for your email. I completely understand that the FBI has to be very careful with the information of this case.

If it's not possible to have a comment from you, we would still want the FBI to know what we will be claiming in the article. If anything seems incorrect to you, even if it's off the record, I hope you can let me know. Here are the key statements about the FBI in this article:

- From July 2016 to September 2017, the FBI identified 34 young women as possible victims of Jeffrey Epstein.
- Two FBI agents contacted [REDACTED] in 2011.
- The two FBI agents told Ms. Giuffre that they wanted to reopen the Epstein investigation.
- The agents contacted Ms. Giuffre because the Daily Mail had published a story, in March 2011, in which [REDACTED] reveals her name and identifies men she encountered and was lent to when she was in the company of Jeffrey Epstein.
- One of the two agents who contacted [REDACTED] is [REDACTED]
- We identify [REDACTED] as a senior agent in a previous investigation on Epstein.
- The two agents traveled to Australia and interviewed [REDACTED] twice (one time at the US consulate, the second time at her home).
- In both meetings, [REDACTED] mentioned the names of men she was lent to when she was close to Mr. Epstein, to have sex with them. One of the names she mentioned is Alan Dershowitz.

Thank you in advance,

Camila Osorio

Dear [REDACTED]

Hi. I am a fact-checker at The New Yorker magazine and I am reaching out to you because the FBI is mentioned in one of our future pieces. This article, about Alan Dershowitz, mentions the work that FBI officials did during the Jeffrey Epstein investigation, and also allegations Mr. Dershowitz has done about the work of the FBI in the past. I was wondering if we could have a moment to talk on the phone anytime tomorrow for fact-checking purposes. If possible, please let me know what would be the best time and number to reach you.

Sincerely,
Camila Osorio
