Very nicely put!

nature does not sculpture nor does she paint reality for us but shows us the scores of her inner music

Im thinking about the reality more like natures " notation " not very dissimilar to music notation, our eyes see, our minds if conditioned notate harmony, intensity, tempo. relationships (musical phrase. :). family resemblance (ala wittgenstein). there is no meaning separate from an individuals interpretation of the information carried by the notation. nothing deterministic. highly probable yes but definite no. I postulate that music represents the output of the brain, best music composing bypasses the filter of consciousness. mri;s and fmris are like looking at an orchestra through a plate glass window. you can see activity in the violins or basses or winds, but it tells little if nothing about the sound or the music or the perceived meaning, .
