As Director of the UK in a changing Europe (www.ukandeu.ac.uk), Professor Anand Menon is the perfect person to answer 'What happens next?' in Brexit.

Don't miss this rare chance to have your burning questions about Brexit answered with clarity and neutrality by a leading expert in European politics. Stripping back the bluster of the politicians and the press, Menon will weigh up our choices for trade deals, and give the inside track on the probability of adopting agreements pioneered by Norway, Switzerland, Canada and the World Trade Organisation.

Walking us through the probable outcomes as Brexit proceeds, he will share a realistic timeframe for exit, identify whether businesses are likely to move their headquarters, and explore what might happen to Scotland and the UK.

If you want to know what happens next in Brexit, book now to hear Anand Menon at the how to: Academy.

Anand Menon is Professor of European Politics and Foreign Affairs at Kings College London. He also directs the Economic and Social Research Council Initiative on the UK in a Changing Europe. Previously, he has held positions at Sciences Po, Columbia University and NYU. He has written on many aspects of contemporary Europe including the EU politics and institutions and European security. He is co-editor of the Oxford Handbook of the European Union (OUP, 2012) and author, amongst other things, of Europe: The State of the Union (Atlantic Books 2008).
