I got an email from Lesley re massage courses in the city, there aren't that many that aren't accredited and longer in length happening during the window you want, but the girl you're interested in doing it for might want to check out the Open Center as they tend to have pretty good 1/2 day courses - here's the link - also I found a couples massage therapy course that I think might be more of what you're looking for. those courses are usually quite good
