Hi Jeffrey,

I think Noam is getting in one of those periods of overdoing, what usually results in very bad colds, that he hasn't had for the last three years, not coincidentally since I came and have been forcing him to slow down "just a little". But the last weeks have been too intense.

On Friday, he will be coming from a solid day of appointments and I am afraid it can be too exhausting for him. It would be better to have a more relaxing time with you and Martin and leave this discussion for another occasion.

I know I can share my concerns with you.

Valeria
