Ok

Thanks. If ok, I'll be back to you within a couple of weeks on a drawdown time line. I'd expect to start small in July, and accelerate into August, September and October –finishing ideally in September or October

All depending upon the timing of portfolio manager onboarding.

Jeffrey,

Following up on email below and out last meeting. Do you arrive at a final number? And if so is it ok if I send a proposed “draw down” timeline? –meant to coincide with allocations we would make to most effectively put it to work. I'm available if you have anything further to discuss.

Best regards

Ari

Ps- May finished up very well but June is only very modestly positive as of right now.

It was good to see you last week. Thanks for your time and your vote of confidence. The additional capital will allow us to both lower fixed expenses as a percentage of AUM, as well as to be able to allocate to some managers whose minimum for managed accounts exceeded my concentration risk tolerance. Regarding the $30-50m, we will not have time to prepare to pull anything down for June 1, so will start small in July if that works for you. Once you know a more definitive amount in that range, we will start speaking to some of those managers to negotiate allocation sizes, etc. and prepare to take the money down over the following few months.

Best regards

Ari
