

Subject: Fwd: your salary
From: Joscha Bach [REDACTED]
Sent: Thursday, October 31, 2013 12:43:11 AM
Cc: Kevin Slavin [REDACTED] Joi Ito [REDACTED]
To: jeffrey Epstein <jeevacation@gmail.com>

Dear Jeffrey,

this is a difficult issue for me to ask. I have asked Martin about the cost of living in Boston; he suggested that about 100K would be necessary to keep the family fed. Is that somehow possible, please? (Our normal burn rate in Berlin is about 5000 Euro/month, which is about $82K/year, and I gather that Boston is quite a bit more expensive.)

Bests,

Joscha

> Great, thank you. (We are a family of four, with a need to rebuild a household, send a kid into daycare and even visit the relatives sometimes. I imagine that survival in Boston will be hard on 60K; it would not be easy for a family even in Berlin.)

> — Joscha

>

>> Hi Joscha,

>>

>> I talked to Kevin and then Jeffrey about your fee/salary.

>>

>> Unfortunately, I don't have much flexibility at MIT regarding your fee/cost at MIT. $60K is a pretty standard price for the post-doc sort of position that you'll be taking. Jeffrey said that he'll figure out a way to cover the difference outside of the MIT relationship. Can you talk to him directly about that?

>>

>> - Joi

>>

>