Also, I think we can take a helicopter to Kyoto from Tokyo as well. Mori Buildings has a service that I've used. They're friends of mine and Tom Pritzker. It's a EC135 Hermès and there is a heliport right next to Narita (NRT).

Japan aviation authorities are very strict and require long advance planning with strict permits/slots/etc. So if the friend is Japanese or has at least used the jet in Japan before I would assume no issues. If the friend casually offered, I would make sure the crew/dispatch group has run the traps. In either case, with pre-planning, should be doable.
