

---

From: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Sunday, October 21, 2012 3:33 AM
To: Jeffrey Epstein
Subject: Fwd: Saying Sorry

Crazy!!!

----- Forwarded message -----

From: [REDACTED] <[REDACTED]> <mailto:[REDACTED]>></=pan>
Date: Sat, Oct 20, 2012 at 6:50 PM
Subject: Saying Sorry
To: [REDACTED]

Hi [REDACTED]: this is a very weird email I know and please excuse spelling I'm in a hurry. for what its worth let me explain: I dated [REDACTED] for short while a few years back. I fell in love very deeply with him very fast something I had never experienced before. Then he suddenly broke up with me and I totally broke down. I didn't know what was happening cause I thought he loved me too but he said I wasn't the right person for him. I was mad and hurt and very confused. I started doing stuff to hurt him back. he has a reputation to be loose and so I did some web stuff to hurt him that way. I am pretty techy and have lots of friends in silicon valley where I lived for the longest time that I could use also. He knew about some of the things like facebook and other match profile I put up, and last year when he started dating you he told me to back off cause he found "the one". Well I was still in love with him, and [REDACTED] (he doesn't even know that) to have a chance to get back with him. but he never even responded to my texts and call. I had tried to fall in love with someone else but it never felt the same so I was so afraid I would never be happy again without him. I did things I am not proud of and regret. I'm not a bad person but just couldn't help doing this. I couldn't bear the thought that he found "the one". I had already access to his computer from remote and had his phone jailbroken as he never updated his software that was easy. I pretended he was active on match. Until he updated the OS I had full access to his phone I could listen to conversations write messages whatever I wanted. I saw stuff between you and him also, sorry. I was just so in love and jealous cause you two looked so cute together. But now when I saw that what I did caused the end of your relationship I feel really bad. To make a long story short I now want to resolve things and make it up to you and him. Something selfishly about it because I know now he will never be with me again but as long as he isn't really off the market I can't stop thinking of him. so it would actually help me get over this if I knew you guys got hitched. Does this make any sense to you I dunno. (in any case what I am trying to say is I did a lot of bad stuff that made him look bad and you must think he is bad but he really is not. Before it was my intention cause I was so mad but now I just want to get over this or else it eats me up. I need closure. I would have rather met up with you to tell you all this in person (tried calling you also) but I am leaving tomorrow and won't be back til end of the week and think you should know the skinny sooner. I still wouldn't mind meeting up in person when I am back. I can't tell you my name on here as he threatened to sue me and this address is a throwaway address for the same reason. Still please keep whatever I said here to yourself its confidential between you and me. Take care.