Subject: Do a PhD part-time from anywhere with me: Jem's Quarterly #7

<=td>
Hi =effrey

Studying for a PhD can seem like a terrible idea. All that isolated reading and writing, and for what: to disappear into your own world of abstraction? Well it doesn't have to be that way. Three or more years to explore questions that are deeply important to you, in ways that draw upon a range of scholarship, is an incredible once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. So I look for people who are less concerned about a career in academia or getting the letters PhD, and more interested in inquiry. I am seeking 2 new PhD students to start next year in the general field of "leadership" or "leadership development" or methods by which individuals can support social change through organisations or networks.

I will say more about the PhD in a moment. I'm sending this Quarterly because I believe you may be interested in some of my work on sustainable leadership (the unsubscribe button is, as always, at the bottom of this mail). In the past quarter the future of money and investment was a significant theme of my work. 60 people completed the 4th cohort of our free course on Money and Society <<http://lifeworth.us9.list-manage.com/track/click?u=c58fbb0d721b1e5f3e4787bdf&id=e7f131f880&e=397c78e25>> . Hi Gino, Ray and Jeffery,

I can get a trai= from Washington to NY Pen Station on Monday October the 3 rd and will arr=ve at 11:20 am. I will be in NYC until the same time the next day so=could we meet on the Monday.

How will that suit you, but NYC does s=em a long way from Princeton. Gino was suggesting Jeffrey's plac= but I do not know where that is.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Best wishes,
Peter

Hi Jeffrey,

I'd like to introduce you to Ray Lee and Peter Fenwick. Ray is the one doing the two headed scans at Princeton. Peter is in from London and did the eye-gazing work with EEG that I showed you when we met. Perhaps the three of you can meet at Jeffrey's place in NYC while Peter is there.

Ray, Jeffrey will support our eye gazing study (hope to also have Peter there too).
