
From: David Gelernter <[REDACTED]>
Sent: Tuesday, September 27, 2011 6:50 PM
To: Jeffrey Epstein
Subject: Re:

Back to civilized bitrates in Frankfurt, but wish I were still in Venice. I have maybe a dozen decent ideas about working with the timeline, live streams idea; we've briefly discussed 2, the prophylactic memory (for name of course) & the in-car stuff, which is great but requires a Sirius or someone on board. Couldn't we discuss some of the others?

I know you don't need this, you've got a million things to do, but quoting you -- "we could have fun"!

John Schwartz, the NY Times tech writer & great guy, is writing a profile & I would do anything for it not to be another "the wise old prophet is living a quiet life in New Haven, visited by curiosity seekers who toss him pennies & ask him to read the technology future, but happy just to tend his sheep & cows & play his pipes, etc."

On Thu, Sep 22, 2011 at 11:08 PM, Jeffrey Epstein <jeep@vacation@gmail.com <mailto:jeepvacation@gmail.com>> > wrote:

date-last-viewed 0 date-received 1317149394 flags 8590195713 gmail-label-ids 22 2 remote-id 182396