Hi pumpkin...

Struggling still with some annoying treatments and hoping soon to feel=physically better but the good news is that it is more about retrofitting =nd less about recurrence. Whew. Sorry I've been quiet.

I'm strong and scrappy and heading out to Africa with a laundry list o= orders and requests from around the foundation. Let's see how I do.

One interesting thing is a weird new city project in Angola being buil= by the Chinese. They feel like they can't fix the city (speaking of retro=itting!) of Luanda so they are building an entirely new huge city right ne=t door. I can't wait to see it. That is certainly the Chinese way of doing =hings and apparently it resonates with the Angolan leadership.

I will be in Dakar July 7-8-9. The WSH (water sanitation hygiene) team=is making a big grant to the city utilities office and the maternal health=team has made (and considering a supplement) to the public health office a=d I'm going to speak to the mayor about what more we might be able to do. =ve got a few community group meetings and site visits for the work of the=other teams. I've got an open mind and willing to do whatever is right by =he Senegalese. I'm wondering if the timing isn't quite perfect for our tea=s to invest right now (or wait a few months) but I don't have the final sa= on that. Anyway, if your friend would like to have coffee, lunch, dinner =r just hang out for a bit I'd love to say hi. I promise to be on my best b=havior!

I miss you and hope that you are doing ok...
