
From: jeffrey epstein <jeevacation@gmail.com>
Sent: Monday, May 9, 2011 3:35 PM
To: desmond_shum(沈栋)
Subject: Re: Wade

There is little chance for Senegal bein= a biz hub , however a great place for corporate structure. Biz centers soh=uld exist only in the computing cloud, china is the safest place for real a=sets. Structure currently rigid

Sent from my iPad

On M=y 9, 2011, at 2:39 AM, desmond_shum(沈栋) <[REDACTED]> wrote:

I just had lunch with Wade, a man full of=ambitious plan for his country. He has many ideas, and most of them include China in the picture. I feel he is in early stage of developing his plan. I am sure there=are areas that I can help him. But, these are all long term, macro level projects, which mean low visibility of profitability. Of course, project profitability is not a key measuring benchmark in his case.

He wants to attract capital across the gl=bal to bank in Senegal<=/t1:country-region>. I don't think helping you or me to attract capital to bank in Shanghai is an=where close to top of his list.

D

=