Many thanks.

FYI: This is only 2 paragraphs in a 1000 word piece.

I thought you and Jeffrey were one-time friends.

Jeffrey is not one of the top five wealthiest people in New York, but I would suggest that there is a broad consensus that he is one of the smartest.

He pleaded guilty to a crime and paid a large price for his mistake.

For decades, he has used both his extraordinary intellect and his wealth to support many charitable causes, benefiting those much less fortunate.

The quaker inspired method of shunning and shaming was replaced hundreds of years ago by the more benevolent practice of forgiveness.

His friends were asked for theirs and he received it.

Yes.

We were friends.

That stopped the night before my wedding to Annette, when he called her up and asked her to come over and fuck.

But that's neither here nor there.

This is journalism.

I respect and appreciate your point-of-view.

If I have space, may I quote your last two lines?

THANKS for responding.
