Mike Massimino is no ordinary astronaut. Few people in our history have left Earth's atmosphere; fewer still have left the safety of the spacecraft that launched them.

Servicing the Hubble Space Telescope in 2002, he spacewalked for more than 14 hours – and his team set a new record of over 35 hours of spacewalking in one mission. <http://howtoacademy.us7.list-manage.com/track/click?u=f87ff9f2b37acaa64ab36114a&id=bfa22a6491&e=6c9f2c362> He orbited the Earth 165 times, and travelled 4.5 million miles in over 262 hours and 10 minutes. In 2009, he became the first person to Tweet from space (he said that he was 'enjoying the magnificent views').

On 26th October, Mike Massimino joins Dermot O'Leary (presenter of Channel 4's Live From Space) in London's Emmanuel Centre for a special live event at the how to: Academy. With breathtaking video, pictures, and Massimino's first-hand testament, we expect this to be the next best thing to strapping yourself into a shuttle, and counting down to blastoff.

Mike Massimino served as an astronaut for NASA between 1996 and 2014, going on two missions to service the Hubble telescope, spending more than 30 hours on spacewalks. He has appeared as himself on The Big Bang Theory and is now a professor at the University of Columbia. He lives in New York.

Dermot started his career on T4 for Channel 4, and went on to present and produce Big Brother's Little Brother. In 2007 Dermot landed the coveted role hosting ITV 1's The X Factor and presented eight concurrent series, deftly holding the judges to account on a weekly basis. Dermot has also chaired the debate, and interviewed party leaders, for First Time Voters Question Time on BBC3, he regularly presents Unicef's Soccer Aid, and is also the host of the National Television Awards.

In 2014 Dermot hosted the groundbreaking 'Live From Space' season on Channel 4, which culminated in a major interactive TV event featuring a live two-hour broadcast from the International Space Station (ISS) and Mission Control in Houston as the ISS completed an entire orbit of the Earth. Later that year, Dermot's first book The Soundtrack to My Life, a musical memoir, was published by Hodder, and is currently out in paperback.

Dermot will make a much anticipated and triumphant return to the X Factor this Autumn.
