Seems like it would be a prestigious toy for Jeffrey and a good place to build a scientific center near his home. I wonder if there's a natural tie-in to your company. I could imagine attracting a lot of funding to a super-secret Epstein (and Thiel?) funded company that bought Arecebo, hired famous AI people, and wouldn't tell anyone that it was up to but let them put the pieces together for themselves.

In AI, the name of the game seems to be 'raise money to raise money to raise money to build a team of high enough quality to do any of a wider variety of things.
