

---

From: Al seckel [REDACTED]
Sent: Thursday, December 9, 2010 2:33 PM
To: Jeffrey Epstein
Subject: Google sweep

Funds didn't arrive yesterday and Mike couldn't get his new computers and the servers fixed in time. Google did its sweep, and as a consequence we lost an enormous amount of ground. The search on you looks terrible again, and old articles came back to the front. Things that were fixed off his servers remain (like Wiki changes), but hosted sites (like the philanthropy page), etc. dropped off the front page. This is really annoying as the sweep with the servers operational would have knocked out the remaining bad material off. We would have been today (the sweep that we told you about far in advance) well ahead of what we had promised, not backward. :-{ :-{

Throughout this affair, I have tried to provide you with reliable and knowledgeable true counsel. There are reasons I tell you things, and they are not perfunctory. Sometimes noise happens in this universe, and sometimes it is even preventable. This was preventable. When I sent you an email telling you the problem (and I even feared doing such a thing), it wasn't because either Mike or I had secretly booked a flight to Vegas to take in some shows. It was because both of us are extremely knowledgeable in this space and we knew what would happen. Instead of just correcting this, it turned into an entirely distracted and misdirected affair losing much very valuable time for all of us, and also a lot of unwanted stress. Not only did he have to get new computers because his got knocked out, there was matters of transferring data, setting servers back up, etc. Time is valuable on this end too.

Try to listen me Jeff. Stop "mapping." We are trying to help you. That's all I am going to say about it.