So for interaction with the group you have in mind, heads of large state banks and policy makers from China would make sense. In China, major financial resources are all controlled by the state. But it is heck a lot of work to get them organized, and they see limited value personally since their incentive systems do not encourage such interaction. Their promotions have nothing to do with knowledge gained from such interaction. I have organized such activities in the past and it becomes I calling on favors for people to attend.

I would bring 3-5 top private business owners for the following reasons

1. Government people can only travel with other government officials in a group. Plus, They see limited value of meeting those people and I see limited value arranging this meetings
2. Private entrepreneurs can best utilize these meetings and they see the values of these meetings
