He is going to send me the plan of the apartment now, indicating which walls in particular will have to be damaged.

The price is based on the estimation that the apartment is empty – including not only the furniture, but also the core structures (sheet pile walls).

To access the ceiling area and to replace the cooling unit, we need the whole area to be empty.

To access the low area, we also need the space to be empty and a part of the “false ceiling” to be removed.

Same thing for the pipe passage and hydraulic pipe lines.

In fact, only construction workers can open the walls.

When our work is done, you need to have construction workers “close” the walls again.

In my opinion, taking into account your architectural style, you need to engage an architect in this project.

Total price – 64K(chiller) + 15K (electricity)
