lets talk today at your convenience. I would love to see you, and spend a couple of hours, noodling over alternatives, however, its a huge holiday weekend in New York, (no staff) and I am currently scheduled to be and speak in Seattle. The financial markets here, are in turmoil and it looks like much volatility and dangerous uncertainty ahead. risk averse. diversification. it requires people in charge that have weathered severe storms. (like your boat captain). I would love it, if I can host you in New York, the following weekend, if that works for you.

It appears Kathy got an, up close and personal view of issues that you have on your plate. WOW. I recognize I also have ingrained male oriented views but I make it a point to try to empower my women friends i.e. Didier will not respond to a woman.

Didier is Didier. smarmy, clever, devious and dismissive. He was as you described. unfortunately, Kathy's role as bank legal. blunts the spear that he needs.

Henri, unfortunately, does not engender the respect that you need. David, Didier, Kathy, all have the same view, highly sycophantic, with keeping you happy his primary and maybe his only real goal.

There is wide consensus that your fear is correct, it appears Cynthia is beginning to suffer from Rothschild-itis. (you and I are aware of the risks) she, is not you!! she is an extremely competent accountant - CFO and a totally loyal employee/ friend?, She speaks with faux authority regarding subjects in which she has little or no experience, using the aura of your power. I suggest too many responsibilities, some conflict. We need to find you the equivalent of your boat captain(s) dedicated to winning, experienced with storms, the unexpected, and someone who never takes his eye off the prize.
