Subject: Wolfram Technology Conference--register now

Registration is now live for the 2016 Wolfram Technology Conference.

We'd like to invite you to explore cutting-edge applications of the latest Wolfram technologies with Wolfram developers and industry experts at the 2016 Wolfram Technology Conference. It will be held October 18-21 by Wolfram Research headquarters, in our home city of Champaign, Illinois.

Be sure to make your travel plans so you can attend Stephen Wolfram's keynote at its NEW time on Tuesday, October 18 from 5pm-7pm at the Hilton Garden Inn before the opening reception.

Don't miss your chance to discover how Wolfram's latest innovations can help you be more efficient and productive. This event will sell out, so register now:

Here's what to expect when you attend:

Interact with the creators of Wolfram technologies. Hear directly from developers about recent advancements that will save you time, money, and effort.

Participate in optional, intensive training and hands-on instruction for implementing these new capabilities in your organization.

Talk shop with people who get it. Connect with your colleagues and Wolfram staff in topic-based meet-ups, networking events, and roundtable discussions.

A sampling of topics covered:

- Algorithmic startups
- Web app development
- Machine learning
- Natural language
- Functional programming
- Internet of things
- Image identification
- Data science
- Artificial intelligence
- Neural networks
- Automation
- Real-world data
- Cloud computing

If you are interested in submitting a talk, see the guidelines here:
