A few photos from my week in Tanzania. I was there b/c of the Agriculture work the foundation does.

Traveling with Kofi Annan was neat. He is just so truly humble. The older man sitting under the tree said to him... "I know who you are!" he then said "You are an old man like me!" Kofi loved it.

The farmers are [redacted] and [redacted]. They were raising their own 3 kids and 4 kids of his brother's b/c the brother died of AIDS. B/c of improved seeds, they are growing enough food to sell some of it on the market, despite the drought and are putting the kids all through school. [redacted] and I are pulling up cassava (a staple crop in Africa) from the ground. He is actually doing all the work
