H Myla,

It was good to chat with you at the weekend, sorry to hear that your father & sister have not been well & have developed a complication.

Whilst home you should consider arrange for a home care nurse or medical assistant to attend your home to assist your dad & sister whilst you are away.

It sound like you were home at the right time to help your family whilst they have been ill but it doesn't sound like you have had any opportunity to rest during your holiday.

Please forward details of the rebooked ticket when received, I will ask Jason / Andy if they can swap your Friday (pm) watch and let them know that you will be onboard (am) Saturday.

We have a nation day of mourning today following yet another tragic mass shooting event with at least 50 dead and 200 injured (most deadly in US history) at a concert in Las Vegas last night - It appears the shooter used an automatic weapon and continued firing for over 15 minutes before police were able to breach his hotel room on the 32 floor of the hotel and killed the gunman - The lack of gun control in the US is sickening and we can only hope that new laws will be enforced.

Big hugs
Dave

Hi Dave

Hope your doing well .. still here in the Philippines.... a lot happened since i've arrived. As you know, my dad was hospitalized last sept. 20- 25,2017. He's been complaining about almost everything so i decided to have him checked while i'm still here. He has emphysema and still weak as of now. My dad is requesting me if i can extend my stay at least until he recovers. As you know, my sister is still sick she was just diagnosed with grave's disease allegedly due to radiation. If i have a choice, I can not and would not want to burden her with our dad. As it may put her on thyroid storm, which is a very serious complication of the disease according to her doctor.

Hope you understand. I know i'm asking a lot. I'll cover my missed duty when i arrive.

I went to the airlines this morning and they said that they will email me about the flight details of my e-booked ticket on Friday.

Thanks a lot

Kind Regards

Myla Restiza
