Lawrence, you are too smart to believe that science is their focus. think of it like a woman, you keep demanding you want to procreate and having sex with her is good for mankind. that s the strength of your argument.

we plan to talk again.. he wants me to outline some proposals and send them to him.. There are still some weird things about Templeton though that Barnaby hedged on.... The one thing we agreed upon is that it is good for science if Templeton funds science... I will say this, it was the first time I felt Barnaby was internally constraining himself to give me a line, and not say what he thought..

We also agreed however that one should not take what other people think as grounds for whether or not, or how, one should accept support.
