petie,, fun topic,, the two most important areas in bio medicine are genes and the brain, they both share the characteristic, that they engage in coding.. how is memory encoded, how do the codes for the genes describe both physical and mental traits... (twins are more likely to think alike). The signal processing that you use , like nsa for decoding and interception, should be tasked with unmasking the hidden biological codes... You will have a nobel prize if you get it right. there is a bold move that benefits the world. on another note i;m looking at the uk numbers and it appears you guys are almost bankrupt
