Jeffrey,
I ran the engines on the Gulfstream, all is 100% working and ready to launch!

if your travel schedule permits, I would like to drive up to Jacksonville to run engines and complete operation checks in the cockpit on the Boeing Monday morning. They are doing fuel quantity calibration, we hope to be completed by January 15th estimate, and waiting for STC paper work approval from FAA regarding the fuel tank AD.

I would drive up Sunday night and return by 6pm Monday night January 4th. its a 4.5 hour drive each way. is this approved?

thanks,
Larry
