nothing here that I did not fully expect and completely in line with what I was trying to prevent. Mike was able to get his server up (requiring the purchase of a new computer, transferring data, etc.), but it was very late because of the lost time with all that nonsense, and we missed the sweep. Shit happens. No one was trying to charge you extra.

However, no worries, as I stated to you in a previous email, when google makes its next sweep of this area of the web (in a few days), not only will the old rankings be knocked out, but all the new material that we created over the past month will be indexed and put out there, knocking that material bad material off.

I have moved on from this as per your request. it is obvious you neither have confidence nor understanding in what I was trying to do. I would rather be your friend. Working on making the island thing fun and interesting now.

the google page is not good.. after sept when you told me you thought it would take approx twenty thousand to clean up. and hopefully in time for nov 1. then another ten thousand , and another ten thousand. and your emails about how you are all about results ,, then an emergency 2500 dollars to keep servers active , then you told me micahel didn't want to give his bank details.. your quote was he'd explode, that was after he was sent forty thousand dollars directly to his bank.. I have yet to have a complete breakdown of payments. and the results , are what they are,.
