Subject: Spaces by the Bedrooms

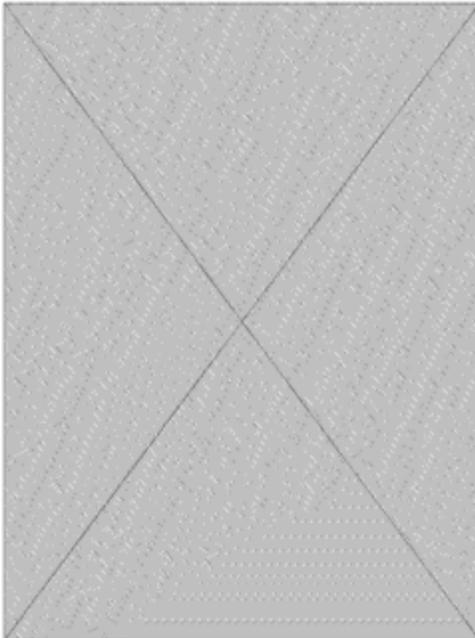

Good Morning,

Please forgive me for not responding earlier, we have been going hard to finish the items on our list.

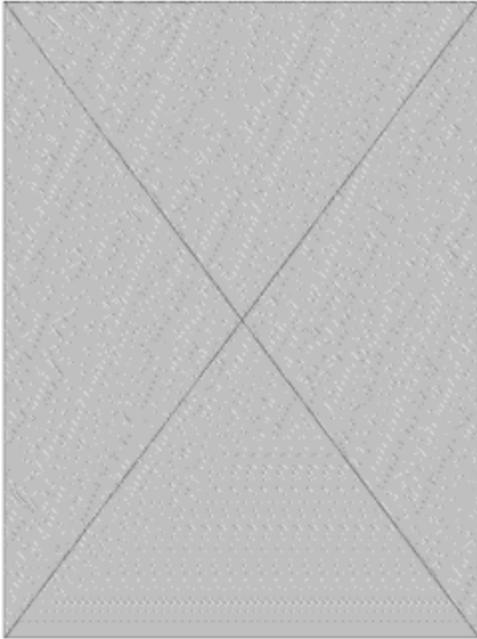

In regards to these pictures that you sent of the spaces by the bedrooms, which was created by the damage of Hurricane Earl.

This you sent:

fill in spaces clean manicured, fishtails?

During your last visit, we spoke briefly about this, and I told you that you have 2 options to cover that space:

#1. Wait til the ScrewPine trees produce more foliage (which they will) to cover the space.

#2. Rip out the ScrewPines, and bring in something that will provide the same effect.

The problem is that those Screw Pine trees are well over 10 years old, by my estimation, And the damage they sustained in the storm was significant, either option you choose, you will have a waiting time delay, to have that space filled in.

Also to find and bring in something as tall and as bushy as the screw pines were may be very difficult, considering how long those trees took to grow.
