The email was not from me. I couldn't figure out how you got into it.

Any chance you're irritated about something else? Either something I did or something someone else did. Or the weather?

To me, it's all a mystery.

what you did say, was that prior to my telling you, that i couldn't see it make a profit, you told me on the island that you knew few details except for the foreign sales being 4.8 million dollars.. only after i told you i could 't see it , did you say yes, in fact you had advised him at every step and you yourself thought it was a guaranteed loss . In fact you said , good now that you decided on your own , i can tell you what i think,, I called him in response to an email. it was not out of the blue, and my friend, could be wrong, but unlikely, I do not know how life is meant to be lived , I can only decide how i intend to lead mine.

None of the issues is pertinent.

I never "knew" or indeed had the slightest idea about what could or would be made or lost and I never said I did. I haven't the people or prior knowledge to help me answer. And I never asked you to "help" him. I would never have asked you to; in fact, he said you had called him.

As far as Norman is concerned, I think your friend is wrong but, more relevant; the ownership issue would uselessly have opened up the valuation issue which would have been impossible to agree on. That was the reason I asked for me and Tony to visit.

It must be wonderful to know just how life is meant to be lived. I never do. Let's talk.

i will try to call over the weekend,, I am well aware of the story of the scorpion and the frog. no big deal, its just you and i differ whether or not friendship is a one or two -way street. I have tried to share my thoughts friends, advice. Like the norman island issue, I will maintain my discipline and not get involved. The discussion invaribily revolves around what I want and its limitations , ie The faux argument that i can't get permssions) It was only my attempt to be a friend, none of the discussion is about what you will do , its only about how it might fuck-up, not what you will contribute only about problems. As you said , it could be a bother for you,, so lets not.
