

To: Jeffrey[eevacation@gmail.com]
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Mon 3/19/2012 2:44:28 PM

I think Josh is losing it. He was yelling at me because I went to a pool party at a friend's house (when he spent my birthday weekend with his grandparents in California and I was very supportive of that idea), I told him that the only reason I went was because I love swimming (and I actually did not lie). He said he would find out who the owner of the house (young Jewish guy Emanuel) with the pool (nothing incredible) was and make him serious troubles.

He suggested that I went to California the next day after he went (he was very generous to offer me a coach ticket) so that I would spend a night there and then fly back with him (in business that time, I guess). Just to be on the plane together.

And he said he is very upset that I don't travel with him anymore like I used to. I could have paid the ppl in the consulate in Moscow, but he made such a big drama when I asked him for 10k last summer for 2 months + deal with my visa...

To cut it short - he is behaving like a psychologically unstable person and cheap above that.

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile