Tough to do as the deal closed in February
Lorber is an investor and Prudential is the broker

Yes,I am sending you a stacking plan ,in a few hours

Right now the project is designed with a large duplex penthouse ,but we might separate them into two units

They are "loft" style

I am still negotiating to buy out the promote and hope to have that done today

For calling me back ,
As I outlined there is 950,000 in investor unit on 21 e 26 th street

We closed our deal in February and since then have received Landmark approval to extend the building one more floor

We have also completed the demolition and have removed all the asbestos

The 950,000 is part of the placement that I did with friends and family of 7,000,000

The deal is that after the mortgage debt is paid 100 percent goes to return of capital ,once that happens 75 percent goes to the investment group

No fees are paid until return of capital

There- after the development group receives the residual

A quick snapshot is Mortgage 15.625
Debt 338,000
Equity 7,800,000

Square feet to sell 33,000

We plan to offer a white box unit at 1300 a foot
And one finished unit at 1600 a foot

(Comps are higher)

I believe there is a sellout of over 36-38 million

I also believe it will happen with in 12 months

I think this is attractive because most of the risk of approvals and asbestos removal is behind

No guarantees but should be good
