Dear Friend,

Thanks for your email.

Chances are that you won't hear back from me. But please don't take it personally. It's just that my hands don't work very well, and typing causes a great amount of pain. To complicate matters, the overwhelming amount of email I get makes it impossible for me to keep up.

So for now I am going to read email but not respond to most of it. I'm not crazy about this approach but it's the best approach I have right now.

I also created a "frequently asked questions" section here:
