John is going to graduate in May with his degree in Restaurant hotel and Meetings Management. He may graduate Magna Cum Laud. Alabama has asked him to apply for their Masters in Hospitality Management. Could you ask your friends in the business if a masters from Alabama would be helpful. I spoke to one of his professors during Family Weekend and she said he might want to consider a program "with a little more meat in it" if he wanted a MS. She also seemed to suggest that if he wants to go into the business he should get out and get some work experience first. I have no idea what the industry values. Any suggestions?

PS: Know anyone who would like to be the graduation speaker at University of Alabama this spring?
