

To: Jeffrey[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: [REDACTED]
Sent: Fri 8/31/2012 9:05:05 PM

[REDACTED] told me today that she found the shoes in my kitchen that I thought had been stolen from my bag during our trip. I am so sorry - I had no idea they were there.

I tried to call you from my home line and my cell a few times to apologise. I haven't worn yet the new shoes that you bought for me - I can return them! I am really sorry I wasn't attentive and jumped to a conclusion before thinking well. I had searched my apt looking for the shoes but didn't guess to look in the kitchen (my luggage bag was on the floor next to the kitchen) and assumed they had been stolen cause [REDACTED] was also missing certain things. I feel terrible about my mistake.

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile