Jeffrey,
We completed an "A" check on the Boeing, which is a expansive preflight, a fuel leak, small pin whole was noted on the #3 engine on steel braided fuel line and is being replaced, all other systems are in good working order and Boeing is ready for test flight. If you don't think we'll fly Boeing anytime soon, I'd like to accomplish a +45 min test flight next week since the GII is out of service for 24 month inspection, our B727 ground insurance covers for this type of flight with no additional monies, since no passengers will be on board.
-(Rich, correct me if I'm mistaken on this statement?).

please advise if you think B727 test flight is appropriate at this time?

thank you,
Larry
