Nice to hear from you, yes i heard about the flogging case. we live in changing times. whether you use mcgee or not, means little to me, feel no compunction. I hope to see you before the election, I understand how complex it is . I am always there for you, ps. what happened to the nutty idea re funds deposited etc.

Dear Jeffrey,

Sorry I haven't written to you for a while. We are now in the process of getting our campaign teams organized. We were unable to respond to Jim effectively as we didnt have a team in place.

In the meantime, my son and another friend identified a PR person to come down here and help me with some negative campaigning that has been going around about a girl sentenced with flogging. This story has been haunting me for the last three weeks but now its under control.

This PR person has a team of three who can work here on the ground to help put the campaign in place. Its kind of expensive but may be necessary here.

On the political front I am building my support and other politicians are starting to pledge their support. By mid May I hope to have a coalition of 5 parties to support my candidacy.

Fundraising would be the next big challenge. We think this campaign might cost about 25 to 30 million dollars. Until now we don't have any limitation on campaign funding.

Already my schedule is becoming very hectic. But once my team is in place it maybe easier and able to start moving fast.

Thanks for everything and especially for checking on me.

Best regards.

Waheed
