[REDACTED] managed to convince me that you are ok, so unless I hear differently I am going to listen to your last words on the phone and do as you tell me to do and wait here. However, you are my number one priority and more important than anything or anyone. I am a phone call away and a flight away and even if you change your mind by morning I can come in the afternoon. Nothing else matters as much as you do...nothing. You are my priority, have been for the last couple of years and will continue to be.

I was considering not telling you as I had a feeling that you would tell me to go on Friday and that means leaving you, but then I couldnt not tell you.

Also [REDACTED] said you said it was the actual wedding, it is not a wedding. They just had a party planned for Friday night that they were going to cancel in case she didnt make it through the surgery this week, she made it through but has been given 6 months to live, so [REDACTED] want to use this Friday to celebrate their upcoming marriage with their friends, cancel the wedding altogether and just get legally married with no celebrations (however jewish people do that). So this will be her only social gathering to celebrate. [REDACTED] seems to want to 'close the deal' asap, at least we now know what gets guys moving!
