

To: Jeffrey Epstein[jeevacation@gmail.com]
From: Milken Institute
Sent: Thur 7/17/2014 11:16:52 PM
Subject: Milken Institute Monthly - July 2014

Forward | Y

Upcoming Events

Milken Institute Forum

Creativity, Inc.:
Overcoming the Unseen
Forces That Stand in the Way of True
Inspiration

August 5 — Santa Monica, CA

September 18-19 — Singapore

October 27-28 — London

Chart of the Matter

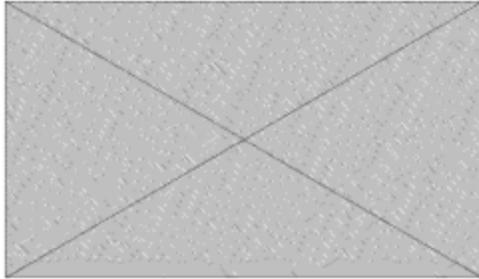

Healthy Savings: Medical Technology and the Burden of Disease

Today the Milken Institute published a report, "Healthy Savings: Medical Technology and the Economic Burden of Disease." Do you want a free copy here.

As America ages and sedentary lifestyles and unhealthy diets become more prevalent, the nation is suffering a sharp rise in the prevalence of chronic disease. As the 21st century unfolds, technology — in the form of advanced diagnostic and therapeutic devices — can meet the need for early detection and more effective management of illness.

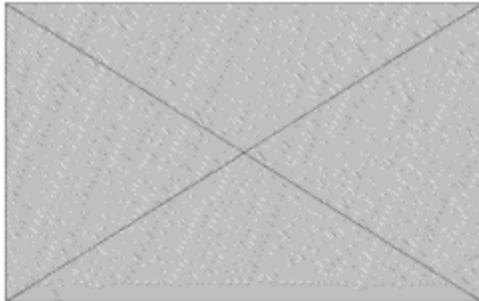

Researchers at the Milken Institute undertook a comprehensive, quantitative documentation of medical technology's impact on the economic burden of disease. The study also projects how future innovation in this sector would affect the health care system and the larger economy — a benefit of more than $23 billion a year for the United States.

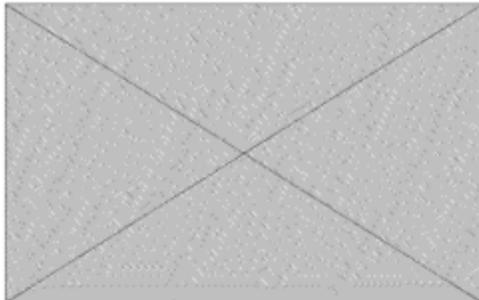

Increased incentives for medical technology investment

Buzzworthy Videos

A story of hope and progress in Rwanda

Fox Business: How the Internet is changing the way you handle your finances

Quick Links

-  About Us
-  Milken Institute website
-  Research
-  Events
-  Currency of Ideas blog
-  MI Review

Milken Institute Review: Third Quarter 2014

In the latest issue of the Milken Institute Charles Castaldi, a former NPR reporter in Central America, explains how Nicaraguan strongman and Chinese billionaire are planning to dig a $50 that will eclipse its rival to the south.

You'll also find a report card on Abenomics; an analysis of the emerging Partnership; an attack on the prevailing wisdom that Hollywood's road to be paved with ever-fewer, ever-more-expensive mega-movies; an argument strings-attached, "universal basic income approach" to reducing poverty

Insights from Institute Experts

Politics heat up over the fate of Ex-Im Bank

Beyond appropriations work, Congress must decide whether to reauthorize Export-Import Bank of the United States, or Ex-Im. More...

World Cup 2014: Bane or boon for Brazilian growth?

A lot of the more than $11 billion the country has spent was squandered on relatively fruitless investments in new or upgraded stadiums. More...

Latin America: Short of the goal in football and financial markets?

Latin America remains underdeveloped in its capital markets compared to emerging markets and certainly to developed countries. More...

This Just In: MI goes platinum

This week, the U.S. Green Building Council certified as LEED Platinum the newly opened building at George Washington University that's home to the Milken Institute School of Public Health — the only university building in the na to win this honor.

In memoriam: Michael Intriligator

On June 23, we lost a dear friend, Michael Intriligator, distinguished economist who for more than a decade was Milken Institute Senior Fellow. From 1982 to 1992, he was the director of the UCLA Center for International and Strategic Affairs (now the current Burkle Center for International Relations). A member of the editorial boards of Economic Directions, Defense and Security, and the Journal of Economics and Conflict Management and Peace Science. Michael Intriligator authored or edited over 200 articles and several books.

MILKEN INSTITUTE
Changing the world in innovative ways

Santa Monica | Washington | Singapore

Privacy Policy | Manage Subscriptions | click here to opt-out of all emails