I was able to remove the domain controller logically from the network so that powering it down shouldn't present a problem to STC. I also started a disk utility on the Citrix Access Gateway to wipe all data. all servers are offline at this point in the rack. I'm going to reach out to a data destruction service (which i still need to do) for the remaining hard drives and backup tapes that i would like to see shredded.

Should only need an hour to pull the remaining equipment out of the rack at 71st.
