Ok, so do we make the assumption that they are looking for something new that she has accomplished?

If so, she has not retaken the ACT or SAT's, no Nobel Peace Prize during the last semester and no recent wins at Wimbledon or the US Open...

I talked to her about the Lesbian Eskimo thing or becoming a Schvartze. She said that she was willing to give it a try if that meant getting into Michigan, but she is concerned that they will perceive her to be disingenuous.

I believe her best option may be extracurricular (writing for the magazine, Leading the fashion show and raising money for that charity, running Inspire Bright and fundraising to bring an important program that will help teens like her.

Is this the right direction and is it enough?

I am driving 5 hours tomorrow morning up to the cold, gray and gloomy town of Syracuse so that I can watch as my daughter weeps in disappointment and believe that it will still be well below freezing - even this time of year, so perhaps we should look at giving that Lesbian Eskimo thing a try?

This process is grueling. I would rather fly down to Guantanamo tomorrow and be water boarded for the day.
