ok.. that is probably the best because then I don't owe you money.. I will find out how to do that.
thanks.

Hi Jeffrey: Hope the meeting you were in the middle of when we talked went well.. :)
Two things..

1. Table for April 4th gala.. max table donation is $15K, next highest level is $10K.. don't know what you want to do here.. do you want to buy a table and fill it (10 people), buy a table and simply have foundation listed on table, or something else.. gotta let my people know as they plan logistics.. :)
2. re house.. Thanks for this.. it truly is life saving I think.. given the stupidity over alimony and trying to get standard mortgage.. we are going this weekend.. we are looking at houses in the $450K-$650K range.. I can probably put down now at least $150K, which would mean $300-500K left over, which we would hope to pay back within 5-7 years or so.. maybe sooner if Nancy sells the house in Canberra, as her equity in that is about $300-400K. I am going to try and fill out mortgage forms, but I know from talking to brokers there that the alimony may put a limit on amount I can borrow from them, even if net income far exceeds amount of payments.. stupid.. so it would be easiest to bypass that route if we can.. It looks like 15 year mortgages are around 3.75% or so, so would be happy to pay interest of 3.75%-4% or so if you want to structure it as a mortgage.. Let me know how you want to handle this.. my gross income after I pay kate her alimony is, including outside stuff, probably around $15-20K/mo, and nancy will bring in about $5-8K/mo so should be no problem repaying reasonably promptly.
